KATHERINE KLIMITAS

DESIGN PORTFOLIO

I am a New Orleans-based artist and designer who sold my first watercolor at age 10. As the daughter of veterinarians, I express my family's life-long love of animals through my meticulous life-like paintings. Today, at age 34, I run my multifaceted business KAK ART & Designs from home. When clients learn that I have Osteogenesis Imperfecta, also known as brittle bone disease, they are captivated by my unique perspective. I'm 2 feet 7 inches tall, get around in an electric wheelchair, and create all of my art and commercial graphic design while lying on my side.

ANNIE CLEMENTS (BASSIST)

Annie Clements grew up in New Orleans, the daughter of a powerhouse attorney (her mom) and a brilliant blues guitar player (her dad). She received a degree in her chosen profession of playing the bass from the Berklee College of Music. Annie has played with a variety of well-known artists, including but not limited to Theresa Anderson, Sugarland, Holly Williams, Amos Lee and, currently, Maren Morris.

I designed Annie's WordPress-based website, as well as all of her social media assets (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and YouTube) and logo. I also currently manage all of her social media platforms.

LUCKY BUCKS COUPON BOOK

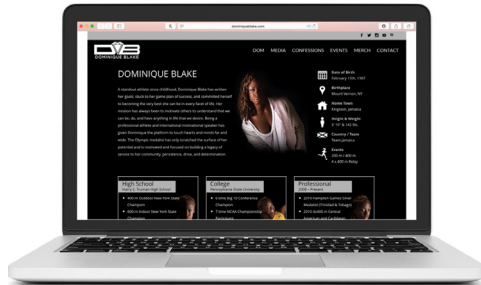

Lucky Bucks Coupon Book is locally owned and operated in Hammond, LA and has been in existence for over 25 years. Currently, the book consists of over 50 ads, which are available locally and are printable on the Lucky Bucks website. The book comes out bi-annually and features restaurants, local retail shops, salons, and much more.

I design the majority of the printed ads in each Lucky Bucks issue and designed/update their website as well. I manage their social media accounts, posting individual ads as well as networking with each business featured in the book.

ROD STEWART

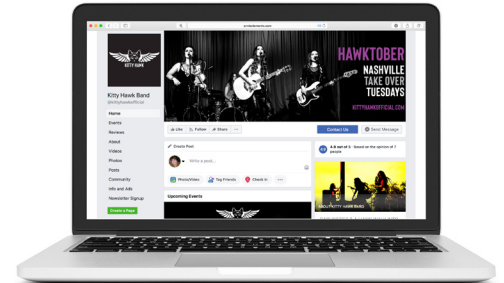

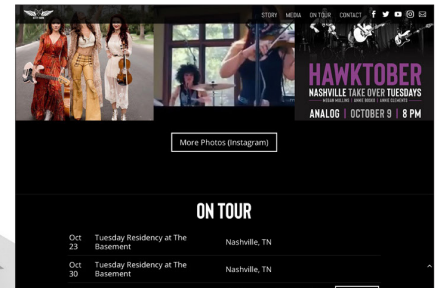

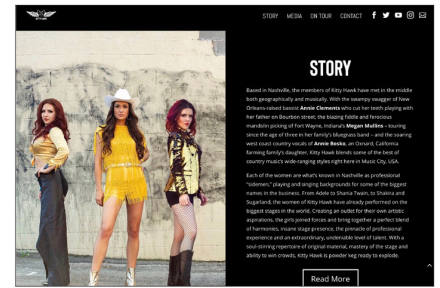

After meeting Sir Rod Stewart, he gave me the opportunity to design the artwork for his upcoming album, Blood Red Roses. Although he ultimately chose a different direction and designer, I was able to present him with a total of ten design directions, receiving feedback from him (through his manager) after each one. The two month process was an incredible learning experience and may lead to future design opportunities with him.

DOMINIQUE BLAKE

A standout athlete since childhood, Dominique Blake has written her goals, stuck to her game plan of success, and committed herself to becoming the very best she can be in every facet of life. Her mission has always been to motivate others to understand that we can be, do, and have anything in life that we desire. Being a professional athlete and international motivational speaker has given Dominique the platform to touch hearts and minds far and wide. The Olympic medalist has only scratched the surface of her potential and is motivated and focused on building a legacy of service to her community, persistence, drive, and determination.

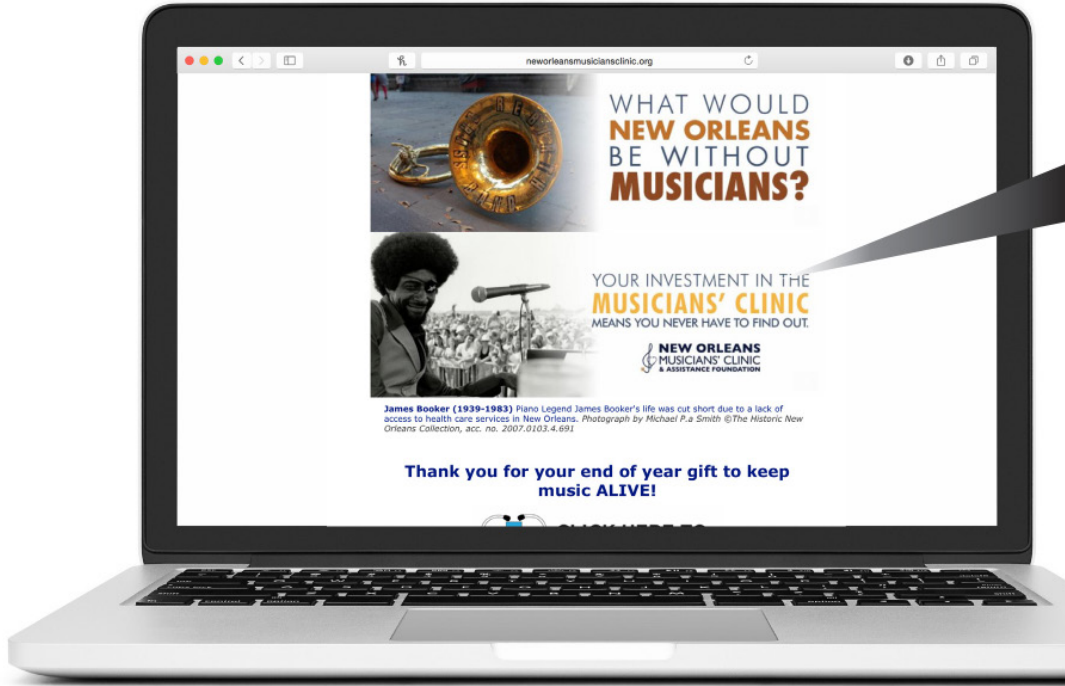

I designed Dominique's logo as well as her website.

KITTY HAWK

Introducing Kitty Hawk, comprised of Annie Bosko, Megan Mullins, and Annie Clements, a ladies only country/folk band. Powerhouse vocals combined with some incredible instrumental talent is sure to make these ladies the “next big thing” in Nashville.

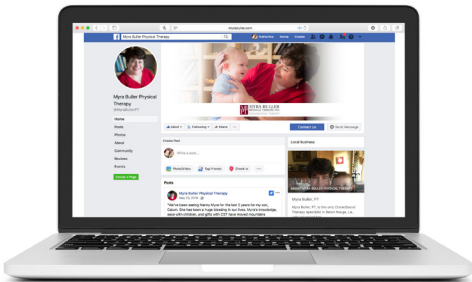

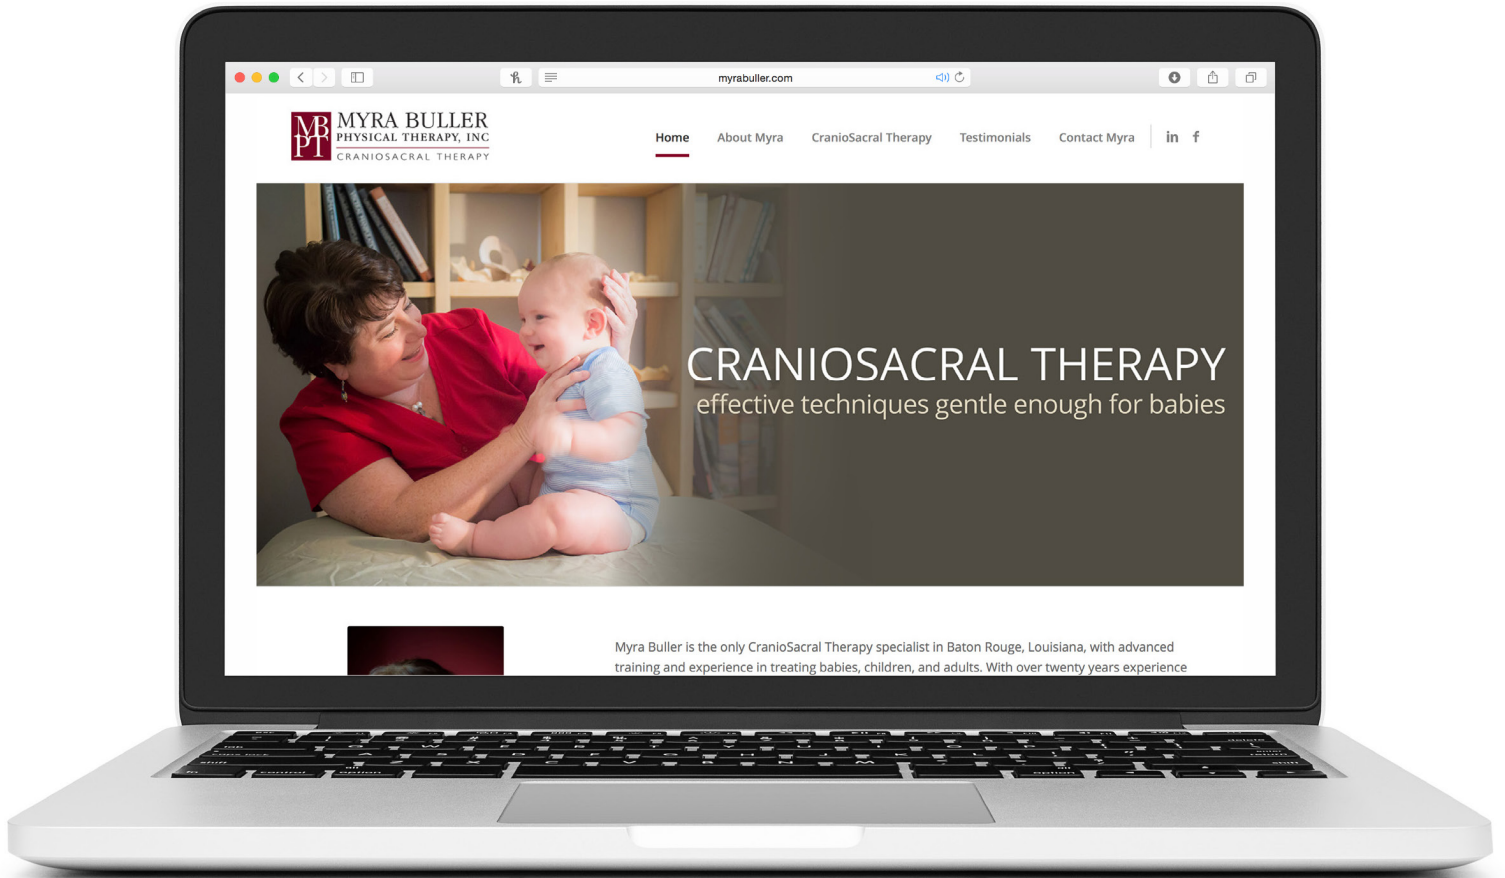

I designed Kitty Hawk’s logo and promotional print marketing, as well as their SquareSpace-based website and all social media assets (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and YouTube). I currently manage and monitor their social media platforms, constantly helping them interact with their rapidly growing fanbase and promote their shows.

My Baby Has Tongue Tie.
How Can CranioSacral Therapy Help?

"My little boy Emmett was born tongue tied. The exercises [Myra] performed allowed us to create a bond that I will cherish forever. Myra was always gentle and explained everything she was going to do. She changed my little boy's life!"

As a licensed physical therapist since 1985 and specializing in CranioSacral Therapy for over 20 years, Myra Buller, PT, C.S.T., has had positive results in treating babies with tongue tie and lip tie, bulbar and other medical procedures. According to Myra's clients with four or more babies, the light-touch treatments have improved their breast feeding experience and their children's overall wellbeing.

HELP NEEDED

Helping one with a disability is a noble and honorable... It is a hard obligation to keep... I have thought about how I can help people with disabilities... I also have to mention that when you have a disability you are not just a person with a disability... you are a person with a lot of talents and skills that you can use to help others...

This is a lesson I have learned... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person...

The more you understand... the better you can help... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person...

DOES IT HURT?

The doctor said that my back hurt... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person... I have learned that it is not about the disability... it is about the person...

LOOKING UP

Looking Up is a glimpse into my world, a world unlike most. Because I spend most of my time in an electric wheelchair due to Osteogenesis Imperfecta or Brittle Bone Disease, I spend a lot of my time looking up. Though the book began as my college senior project, it evolved shortly thereafter into my story, complete with anecdotes, humor, and powerful photography.

I wrote and designed Looking Up to help people understand that a disability is only as limiting as you allow it to be. Though we may have to function a bit differently than most, people with disabilities still have many of the same ambitions as "normal" people. I, for example, still want a well-paying job that I enjoy doing, a nice home, and to travel to as many places as I can in my lifetime. I want my hair to look nice and my make-up to be presentable every time I go out. My best friend is probably my dog. Sound familiar?

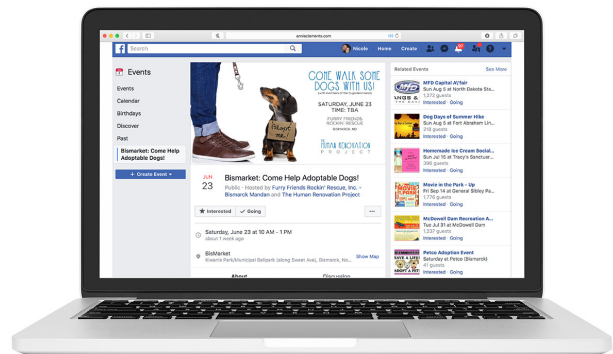

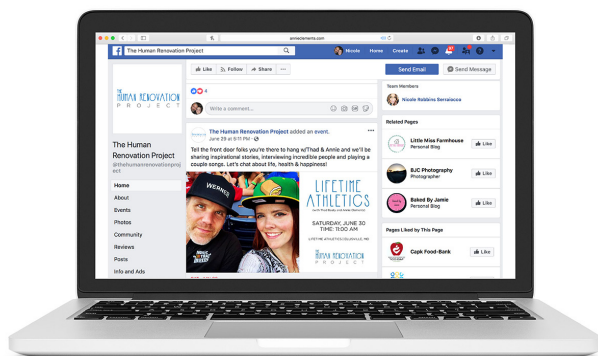

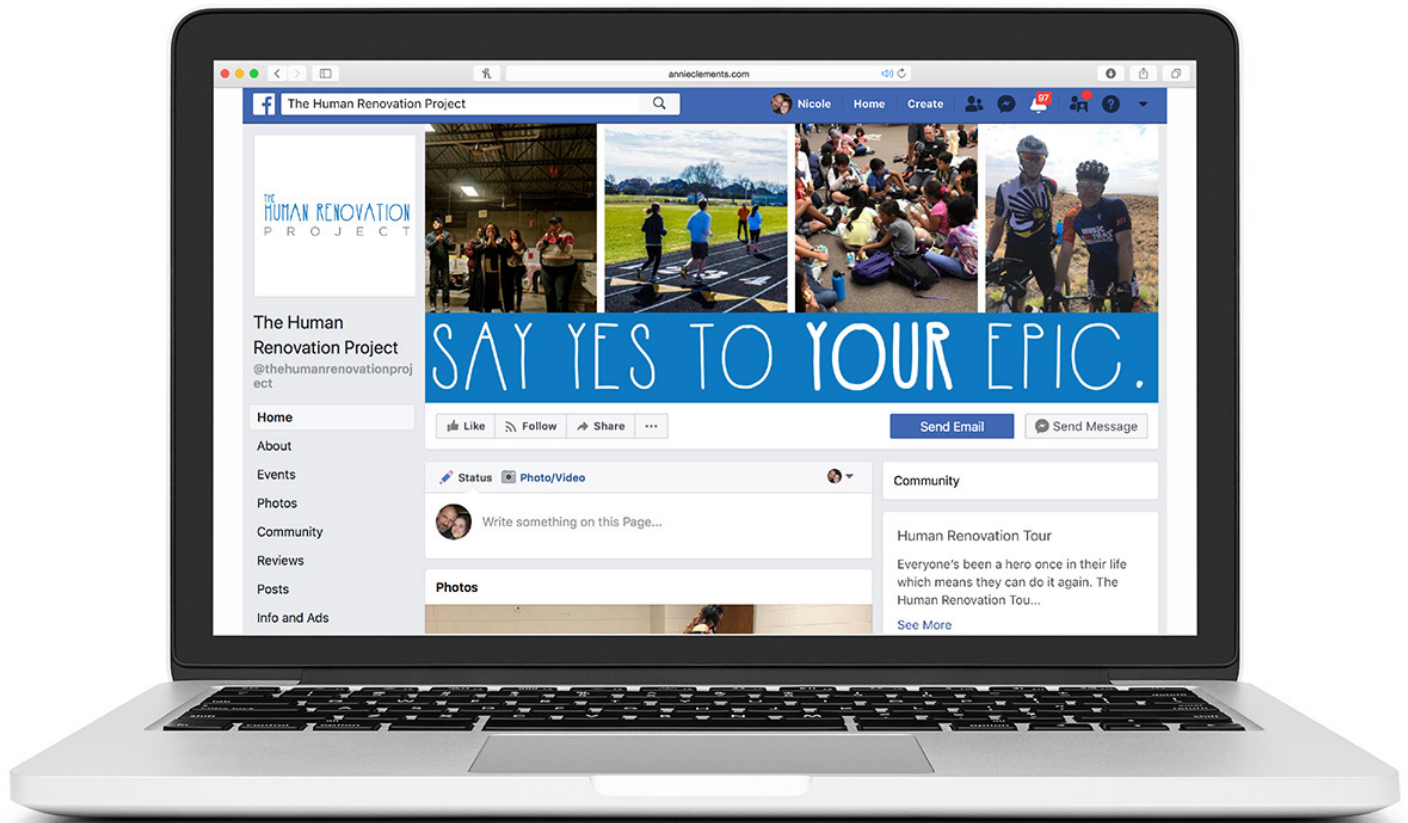

I'd like this book to inspire not only people with disabilities to reach for their goals, but also to show physically functional people that if I can be successful with my added physical challenges, so can they. In my opinion, laziness is not a disability. There is a major difference between not wanting to do something because it takes effort and not being physically able to do something. I hope that my story gives people of all kinds the ambition to make the best of their lives and make a difference in this world. Everyone has that capability if they only try.

MUSIC THAT MOVES

Music That Moves, developed by Sugarland guitarist Thad Beaty and Nicole Serraiocco, is on a mission to help people who see themselves as “normal” realize their potential, become empowered to accept the challenge, and pull off something EPIC that they never dreamed was possible. Through a number of outreach events and by teaming up with a variety of non-profit organizations all over the country, MTM seeks to change one person at a time, in turn helping them to inspire those around them. It is the convergence of passion, sport and music to create a movement that is truly epic and contagious.

I developed the logo for Music That moves, as well as their website, Facebook page, and print material.

HUMAN RENOVATION PROJECT

To inspire those that see themselves as “normal” to realize they are capable of doing epic, amazing and heroic things they never dreamed were possible. The journey starts by making daily choices to say yes to one small, personal renovation project. This is the mission of the Human Renovation Project.

I designed the Human Renovation Project's logo, as well as their Facebook page's assets. I currently monitor their social media accounts and promote their individual events on Facebook.
